

A WOMAN'S PRAYER.

It is notable that in the despondency caused by womanly diseases, there seems to be a suffering woman no way of escape from pain except at the price of life itself. It would be sad to record such a story of struggle and suffering except for the fact that in such dire distress many a woman has found a way to health and happiness by the use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription.

This great remedy for womanly ills has well been called "A god-send to weak and sick women." It establishes regularity, dries weakening drains, heals inflammation and ulceration and cures female weakness. It makes weak women strong and sick women well.

Your medicine almost raised me from the dead," writes Mrs. Edwin H. Gardner, of Myrtle, Plymouth Co., Mass., Box 14. "My wife was like brick dust, and I had pain all over me and such a dragging feeling it seemed I could not get my house work. I had to sit down to wash the dishes, even. In the year 1897 I was so sick I did not care to live and prayed many times that God would take me. One day I found a little book, I read it and wrote to Dr. Pierce, and in a few days received an answer. I decided to try his medicine, and to-day I am a well woman. I have no headache, no nervous pain at all. I used always to have headaches previous to the monthly period and such pain that I would roll on the floor in agony. I took three bottles of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and three of Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets, and was completely cured."

Accept no substitute for "Favorite Prescription." There is nothing just as good.

KENTUCKY AT THE FAIR.

DEVELOPMENT OF THE STATE IS THE KEYNOTE.

President Ford Outlines the Plans of the Kentucky Association.

MERITS HEARTY ENCOURAGEMENT.

That $100,000 for a Kentucky building and a full display of Kentucky's products and resources at the World's Fair at St. Louis in 1904 is as certain to be raised as the Exposition is to be held. Within a month since the organization was formed, the movement has gone forward with such an aggressive step that success is already assured. The body has been incorporated under the laws of Kentucky, and a board of directors, to serve until January, 1905, was elected. The officers, directors and committees are serving without pay, and are not only giving of their time, but of their money for a faithful representation of the "New Kentucky"—the "Twentieth-century Kentucky"—at the great fair.

President A. Y. Ford, of the Exhibit Association, has issued a statement showing the progress of the work to date.

"The Kentucky Exhibit Association," says Mr. Ford, "is down to work with every indication pointing to success. It would be easy enough to win a sort of success in such an undertaking, but that is not what we want. It is not what Kentucky needs. It is not important that the State be represented at St. Louis, but that it should be represented in such a striking way as to attract pronounced attention. And by this I do not mean an attention that would merely be gratifying to State pride, but an attention that would have practical value and bear fruit in facilitating the work of State development.

"In fact, all the plans of the Exhibit Association are being laid along that line—State development. I believe it is the unanimous sentiment among the gentlemen who have connected themselves with the organization that an appeal to the people of Kentucky for funds could not be justified, and would not be made by them, on any other ground or for any other purpose than to present the resources and products of the State in a way that will result in material good.

"Kentucky is one of the richest States in the Union in mineral, timber and agricultural resources. It offers inducements unequalled elsewhere for the investment of capital.

"The building that will be erected at St. Louis will not be a mere reception room, furnished with interesting relics. It is to be itself an exhibit, with the products of Kentucky's mines, forests and factories utilized in its construction, the decoration and furnishing. It is furthermore, to be an exhibit hall, containing an attractive display of Kentucky's products, set forth in a striking way, to give the visitor at a glance an impression of the truth that Kentucky is a State of great natural wealth, of a great variety of resources, and of rapidly multiplying manufacturing interests. We want to give a new setting of material prosperity to the 'Old Kentucky Home.'

"In addition to the Kentucky building and the displays it will contain, it is proposed to assemble on a large scale and on a scale never attempted before, displays of Kentucky minerals, agricultural products of all kinds, to be placed among the classified exhibits in the main buildings of the Exposition. We shall also put the State's best foot foremost in the livestock exhibits. In prosecuting this work we are securing the assistance of men who are experts in their various lines—who know what the State is and has, and how to collect it and how to display it to the best advantage. As I have said before, to be of any value at all, these exhibits must be striking in extent and arrangement. And they will make an array to surprise even most of the people of Kentucky. Few States, for instance, can equal the mineral display that can be made with Kentucky coal of different varieties, Kentucky asphalt, zinc, lead, flour spar, glass, building stone of many varieties, coke, iron, besides timber of almost endless varieties, fruits, grains, hemp, tobacco and a long list of products.

"As you will see, the work with us is 'business.' The work has been taken hold of eagerly by business men. Our committees for the solicitation of funds have been nearly all made up. Several are yet to be completed, but most of them will be actively at work within a week."

"Last winter an infant child of mine had lost in a violent form," says Elder John W. Rogers, a Christian Evangelist, of Filley, Mo. "I gave her a few doses of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and in a short time all danger was past and the child recovered." This remedy not only cures croup, but when given as soon as the first symptoms appear, will prevent the attack. It contains no opium or other harmful substance and may be given as confidently to a baby as to an adult. For sale by Z. Wayne Griffin & Bro., druggists.

The Apple Crop.

The apple crop of the United States this year, according to the estimate of "The New England Homestead," will be over 43,000,000 barrels, against 37,000,000 barrels in 1901. The crop represents some marked contrasts when placed beside that of a year ago. In the older established orchard sections, in the middle and eastern States, the increase over last year's failure is pronounced. In the central West there are sharp gains, while in the South-West, a territory last year favored by good yields, the crop this year is unusually deficient. As for quality, this is far from satisfactory in the central and western States, but in New England it is better than last year. New York, the most important apple State, has a big crop, but less than the crop of 1896.

Indians Elect a President.

Tuesday, November 4, was an important day on the Cattaraugus and Allegheny reservations in Western New York, the Indians holding their election. They used the blanket ballot.

A bitter contest was on between the Democratic and Republican factions of the tribes. Elijah Turkey was the Democratic candidate for President, while Frank Patterson, Republican, was a candidate for re-election. The election resulted in a triumph for the Republican ticket. On both reservations 600 votes were cast. Patterson was a winner by forty majority.

Eli T. Johnson was elected Clerk and William Hoag, Treasurer. Republican councilors, surrogate, peace-makers, poor masters, chief marshal and police marshals were elected, although by narrow margins. Feeling ran high over the election, but there was no disorder of any kind.

The Indians are leisurely and require at least ten days to canvass the vote.

Among the candidates were found the names of Seneca Parra, Philo New, Salom Grouse, Philip Fatty, Willie Abram, Lew Twoagans, Quiller Jimeron, Solomon Maybe, Jim Crow, Jacob Halftown, Joselyn Warrior (a candidate for peace-maker), Casper Twoagans, Sydney Kenjockerty, Lewis Longfinger, Frank Tallchier, Bally Parker, Delos Kittie and other names of tribal significance.

Oldest Man in the World Dead.

HARTFORD, KY., Nov. 14.—Elijah Bledsoe, colored, probably the oldest man in the world, died here this morning. He claimed to be 138 years of age, and there was hardly a doubt that he was as old as he stated.

Captain P. B. Thompson, who is 87, and J. H. Stagg, aged 85, say that when they were little tots, Elijah was an old man. He could recount many incidents of the War of 1812, which he could not have known in any way but by observation.

When Lafayette visited this place in 1824 Uncle Lije took him some water for his ablutions and was presented with some silver by the noted Frenchman. He also met the crafty Aaron Burr when he left the paradisaical retreat of Blennerhassett and came here. He often stated that he was charmed with Lafayette, but disliked Burr on general principles.

It 1830 Elijah's master pitted him against another negro whose master was summing at Crab Orchard Springs. The race was to be from the latter place to Perryville, a distance of 30 miles. The master whose darkey was the swiftest was to get both negroes. Elijah made the run in four hours. His rival fell dead half way between the places.

Until recently the old man made a living by manufacturing and selling shoe make, but growing too feeble to toil thus, he went over the hill to the poorhouse, where he died. It is said that he was married 18 times and was the father of 74 children. He was born in Virginia.

About Twenty Years From Now.

It was high noon in the palatial offices of the Hot and Coal Air Trust Operator, No. 1.

The great man himself had just come in, and after carefully drawing his day's profits from the safe, sat reading his morning's mail.

A messenger approached.

"Sir, there is a man outside to see you."

"Who is he?"

"The President of the United States."

"The great personage frowned.

"That fellow," he said ominously, "has been hanging around here for a week. Tell him to be off. I have nothing for him!"

If you are bilious and seeking advisers.

That's all; just enough said.

These famous pills do not gripe, but move the bowels gently and easily cleansing the liver. Their tonic effect gives strength to the glands, preventing a return of the disorder. J. H. Williams Hartford, Ky.

WORLD'S TEMPERANCE LESSON.

Ephraim occupied a fertile country, stretching across the heart of Palestine from the Mediterranean to the Jordan. In the midst stood Samaria, the capital, on a commanding eminence. The tropical luxuriance of the valleys hung about it like the bacchanalian garland on the brow of the banqueter. And its exuberance was as evanescent, for its glorious beauty was a fading flower. Destruction was at hand.

The capital, court and people were enslaved to drink. Under the subtle delusion they were in perfect case. With the proverbial stupidity of the drunkard, they felt perfectly safe, trusting in the mountain fastness of Samaria, on a commanding eminence. The tropical luxuriance of the valleys hung about it like the bacchanalian garland on the brow of the banqueter. And its exuberance was as evanescent, for its glorious beauty was a fading flower. Destruction was at hand.

Plain Budge in Kansas.

[New York World.]

Not very long ago a Western banker called at the office of Hallgarten & Co. and asked for Mr. Henry Budge. He pronounced it plain "Budge."

"You want to see Mr. Budge?" said the office boy.

"No; I don't want to see Mr. Budge. I want to see Mr. Budge," said the banker.

"Well, there is no such man here," said the office boy.

"Yes, there is," said the banker. "I have been corresponding with him for ten years."

"How do you spell it?" asked the office boy.

"B-u-d-g-e," said the banker.

"That spells Budge," said the boy.

"Well, it spells Budge in Kansas," said the banker, "and I ain't going to Budge from this seat until I see Mr. Budge."

Awful Death from Hydrophobia.

NASHVILLE, TENN., Nov. 14.—Will F. Hite, living near Millville, Lincoln county, died a horrible death yesterday. Hite and two other men were bitten by a mad dog three months ago. The other two went to a madhouse, but Hite, not believing in its virtues, did not go. All sense of danger was banished from his mind until last Sunday morning, when he complained of having peculiar feelings, and soon unaccountable evidence and symptoms of hydrophobia became apparent even to himself.

Pathos was added to his fearful delirium by the fact that when he fully realized that the deadly venom was beginning its work, being alone with his wife and children, he went into a room and barred the window and doors, and there alone awaited death. His arm showed that he had bitten himself in his convulsions.

Cut the meat in the morning and shape the hams nicely. Salt lightly to bring out the blood, and allow it to remain a day or two. Prepare a brine, using ten pounds of salt, two ounces of saltpetre, two pounds of brown sugar, one ounce of red pepper, and five gallons of water for each 100 pounds of meat. Let this brine, which should be strong enough to float a fresh egg, stand until the ingredients have dissolved, then place the hams in a tight barrel and pour the brine over them until they are covered. After ten days, pour the brine off and cover with fresh brine prepared as the first was. When they have been in the brine a month, take them out, wipe them with a dry cloth, and while still damp, sprinkle powdered borax over them, using a tablespoonful to ten pounds of meat. A large pepper box is a great help in applying it. Hang them up and smoke with hickory chips two or three weeks. Slip each ham in a flour sack and hang them up in a cool, dry place until you wish to use them. The preservative qualities of borax are recognized by all who have tried it, and it is now used in all the large packing houses.

The best meat is made of hogs weighing 180 to 200 pounds. It has long been a question among progressive farmers as to whether it paid to produce hogs weighing over 300 pounds, and we are quite certain that when the quality of the meat is considered, it does not.

Allow me to say a few words in praise of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. I had a very severe cough and cold and feared I would get pneumonia, but after taking the second dose of this medicine I felt better; three bottles of it cured my cold and the pains in my chest disappeared entirely. I am most respectfully yours for health, Ralph S. Meyers, 34 Thirty-seventh St., Wheeling, W. Va. For sale by Z. Wayne Griffin & Bro., druggists.

Frank Answer.

[Judge.]

"What are you doing here?" demanded the irate farmer of the boy he had surprised in his chestnut grove.

"Nutting, sir," replied the frank little chap, as he strove to hide the nut bag behind his back.
